PELLAGRA IS INCREASING

Surgeon-General Assures Harding Despite Denial of State Officials.

DUE TO ONE CROP

Proper Food Scarce and Often Beyond Reach of Poor, He Reports. Four Deaths In Dallas.

Washington, Aug. 16.—Surgeon-General Cumming, of the Public Health Service, reported to President Harding today that pellagra has increased and is spreading rapidly in the South, despite denials of State officials. The spread is due, he says, to the one-crop system, essential food required to prevent the development of the disease being obtainable only with difficulty and in some instances beyond the reach of the poorer working people.

The Surgeon-General's report to the President followed the conference of Southern State health officials called here early this month at the request of the President to investigate the situation.

"It quickly became apparent," General Cumming's report stated, "that the interest of the assembled health officials centered principally about two points; one, the basis for holding that there existed an increased prevalence of pellagra; second, the use of the word 'famine' in describing the causative conditions.

"So far as the first point is concerned all the health officers present with the exception of the State health officer of Mississippi stated that no reliable morbidity statistics were available for their States. In Mississippi, the only State having trustworthy statistics the incidence of the disease in the first six months of the present year was about double that in the corresponding period last year.

"A careful review of all the facts elicited by the conference fully confirms, in my opinion, the position of the Public Health Service with respect to the increase of pellegra in various parts of the South."

The word "famine," General Cumming explained, was used by the Public Health Service in a scientific restricted sense, referring to a diet which lacked some essential element or elements.

"At the present time," he said, "the food situation, looked at from the standpoint of a physiologically complete diet, is acute in a number of localities."

Dallas, Texas, Aug. 16.—During the past week four deaths from pellagra have been reported, marking the heaviest toll from the disease here in that period of time for several years, according to local health officials today.

Charlottesville.—Authorities at the McCormick Observatory at the University of Virginia are confident that the severe earth tremors felt over the counties of Albemarle, Buckingham, Nelson, Fluvanna and Cumberland early last Sunday morning, August 7, were caused by a great meteorite, traveling north to south, bursting near Howardsville, this county. It will be recalled that a report from Germany was to the effect that the earth passed through the tail of a comet on that night.

Portsmouth.—The river yesterday gave up the bodies of two negroes believed to have been the men who jumped from a row boat at pier No. 1 of the Seaboard Air Line Railway, at the east end of North Street, at 11:45 o'clock last Thursday night when Special Agent Long, of the Seaboard fired upon them in a warehouse on the pier. The bodies were found in the vicinity of the pier, where searchers were engaged practically all of yesterday in a dragging operation. One of the bodies was brought to the surface between piers Nos. 7 and 8 at 4 o'clock and the other came up shortly after the electrical storm which broke over the city at 5 o'clock. The bodies, according to the authorities, were identified as those of Vernon Lee Mabrie and David Goodman.

WANTED DIVORCE FOR DOLLAR--THOUGHT IT COST SAME AS MARRIAGE LICENSE

A colored man from Washington appeared this morning in the office of the clerk of the court and tendered C. Ashby Bladen a brand new dollar bill and explained to Mr. Bladen that he wanted a divorce. Mr. Bladen explained to him that this was not the method and he was powerless to give any assistance along this line. The man, however, told him that he bought a marriage license in Alexandria for $1 and thought the price of the divorce would be the same as that of a marriage license.

Later he appeared in the office of Commissioner of Revenue Callahan and explained something about "Vorce" and the clerk thought he said vote for his wife and accordingly made out a supplemental certifice of assessment for his wife to register an charged only fifty cents. Later the man discovered that divorces are not so easily obtained and when last seen was endeavoring to find a lawyer to take his case.

NEW TAX BILL INTRODUCED

Reductions Placed At $350,000,000 for Fiscal Year.

FINAL VOTE SATURDAY

Corporation Tax Placed At 12 1-2 Per Cent. Instead of 15 Per Cent As Originally Planned.

Washington, Aug. 16.—The administration tax revision bill was laid before the house of representatives today after the Republican membership of that body in conference had changed it so as to make repeal of the excess profits tax and the income surtax rates in excess of 32 per cent. effective next January 1, instead of last January 1.

This change, on the basis of previous treasury estimates, would result in the corporations and individuals with large incomes paying to the government in the next calendar year something like $200,000,000 more than they would have paid had the administration plan of making the repeals retroactive prevailed.

Total tax reductions for this fiscal year under the bill as revised were estimated by some majority members of the ways and means committee at $350,000,000 planned by committee Republicans, and the total tax yield at about $3,200,000,000.

As a result of the changes made by the Republican conference, majority committee members further amended the bill before its presentation in the house so as to make the corporation income tax 12 1-2 per cent., after next January 1, instead of 15 per cent. as originally planned, and the manufacturers' tax on cereal beverages 6 per cent. a gallon instead of 12 cents.

Under plans adopted by the party conference the bill will be taken up in the house at 11 a. m. Wednesday, under a special rule calling for a final vote at 3 p. m. Saturday. Two days will be given over to general debate and two days to consideration of amendments under the five minute rule, with amendments of committee members given preference.

Democratic members of the house plan to hold a caucus tomorrow afternoon to decide upon a course of action while the measure is under consideration. They also are expected to determine whether Democrats on the ways and means committee shall file a minority report. Meantime the full committee will meet to pass finally upon the bill, but this is expected to be a mere formality.

The Republican conference lasted several hours, with Western members leading the fight to reject the plan for retroactive repeal of the excess profits and higher income surtax rates. which was agreed upon at the White House tax conference last Tuesday.

These changes in the repeal dates carried with them delay until next January 1 in the proposed increase of 5 per cent. in corporation income taxes. No change in this figure was made by the conference, but the committee members decided to cut it in half, as it was contended that a 5 per cent. increase would be necessary if the excess profits and higher surtaxes were imposed for this taxable year.

FALLS FROM ROOF

Frank L. Ford Is Painfully Injured Though Not Serious

While painting under the eves of the building in the rear of his residence yesterday afternoon about 7 o'clock, Frank L. Ford, of 428 South Lee street, slipped on the scaffolding and fell into his yard, a distance of some fifteen feet. He was knocked unconscious and sustained a sprained wrist, a cut back of his ear and was severely bruised.

Dr. W. W. West rushed him to the Alexandria Hospital where his wounds were dressed. He was able to return to his home last night, where he was attended by Dr. E. A. Gorman. While his injuries are extremely painful, they are not thought to be of a serious nature.

Fire At Richwood, W. Va., Causes $300,000 Damage.

Charleston, W. Va., Aug. 16.—Fire of an unknown origin yesterday destroyed the principal business section of Richmond, Nicholas county. The loss was estimated at about $300,000.

The blaze started in the Busy Bee restaurant, a frame structure. With in a few minutes the adjoining buildings were in flames. Dynamite was used four times in an effort to check the fire. At the end of four hours 32 business buildings and a number of dwellings had been destroyed. These included the Methodist Church and the town's largest bank and telephone building.

The fire was discovered at three o'clock. Four hours later, with the business section of the town in ruins, the fire was under control. Only twisted metal suports smoking skeletons of what had a few hours before been wealthy business houses and a great pile of debris were all that was left of the thriving trade mart of a small metropolis.

There were no fatalities, but many had narrow escapes. The most spectacular feat was the rescue from the top of a burning 4 story building of three men and a woman by Paul Peak, a stonemeson. The tenants had been trapped on the top floor.

Want To Stop Whiskey Flood.

Detroit, Aug. 16.—Federal officers this afternoon entered the campaign intended to stop transportation of beer and whiskey from Canada across the Detroit river into the United States. Several government agents went to Ecorse, a Detroit suburb, said by state officials to be the center of liquor smuggling activities, and began an investigation.

No arrests had been made up to a late hour today.

Roy C. Vandercrook, state commissioner of public safety, arrived here from Lansing today and took charge of the state forces combatting the liquor flood. He conferred with other officials here and later announced plans for the campaign had been agreed upon, also declining to reveal the methods to be used.

Wilson's Health Improves Steadily, Visitors Say.

Washington, Aug. 16.—Senator Overman was notified today by John Randolph Bolling, who is acting as secretary to ex-President Wilson, that Mr. Wilson had declined an invitation of S. D. Hodges, of Henderson ville, N. C., to spend the rest of the summer at Lake Kanuga, a pretty resort in the Blue Ridge Mountains near Asheville, Mr. Bolling was directed to say that Mr. Wilson was improving nicely at his S street home and would remain there.

Recent reports from the Wilson home indicate that Mr. Wilson is progressing substantially and satisfactorily. He has better use of himself now than he had when he left the White House.

According to recent visitors to the S street home, the former President's improvement since he left the White House has been phenomenal. On March 4 he had absolutely no use of the left arm and leg. He could not lift himself from his chair When he walked from the White House door to the automobile that took him and his successor to the Capitol, attendants had to place his foot on every step. Now he is using his left hand and his visitors describe his rising to greet them without assistance and without apparent effort.

STAGE SET FOR DOLLAR DAY

About Fifty Merchants To Take Part In Tomorrow's Event.

BIG BARGAIN DAY

Each Dollar Day Marks An Increase In the Number of Participating Merchants—Read Today's Ads.

In the neighborhood of half a hundred of Alexandria's leading, progressive merchants will throw open their doors at an early hour tomorrow morning and welcome the first rush of Dollar Day shoppers with hundreds of bargains that have never before been offered for a sale of this nature.

Every Dollar Day sees an increase in the number of merchants participating in the Dollar Day sale and this is no exception to the rule. Dollar Day has been increasing in popularity for the past several months and has become one of the recognized shopping opportunities of the entire year.

Fully a dozen more merchants than were identified with the last Dollar Day are taking part in tomorrow's sale and the greater majority of these are represented by advertising in today's issue of the Gazette. A careful perusal of the advertisements in today's issue means hundreds of dollars saved to the shopping public of Alexandria and complete satisfaction in the purchase of many necessities that cannot be bought at other time for near the price quoted.

The following is the list of merchants who have signified their intentions of taking part in tomorrow's big bargain festival:

Swan Brothers, D. Bendheim and Sons, Inc.; Bernheimer and Co.; I. H. Harris, Rose's Quality Stores; F. G. Ayers; W. F. Smith; New York Bargain House; George W. Bontz, Jr.; H. W. Wildt and Son; J. There are perhaps others, whose names are not known to the Gazette who will take part in the sale and shoppers are asked to visit the stores where the Dollar Day cards are displayed in the windows.

FORTUNE TELLER

Arraigned Takes Out License Which Cost $300

A colored palmist registered on the blotter at police headquarters as "Madam Marie" was charged with doing business without a license in this city in the police court today. There was no proof that the woman had violated the law, as no one appeared who could prove that she had told their fortunes.

Attorney Charles Henry Smith told the court that the woman was willing to take out a license if the charge was dropped. This was satisfactory to the court, and she was acquitted. The woman paid a license tax of $300 to the commissioner of revenue for the privilege of reading palms in this city.

Police Court Notes

Cases disposed of in the police court today follow: Leo World, colored, arrested by Policemen Durrer and Magner, charged with operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor and exceeding the speed limit, forfeited $100 collateral; a woman who was with him was acquitted.

Two men arrested by Policeman Magner, charged with violating the speed law, forfeited collateral a man arrested by Policeman Durrer, charged with violating the speed law, was fined $5; a man arrested by Policeman Magner, charged with having exhaust open on machine, acquitted.

The Salvation Army.

Y. P. L. members held their monthly supper last night. There were 50 young people present, good times? I'll say we did! You ought to have been there. Captain McIntyre wants to thank Mrs. Quayle and her committee for the fine things they prepared for the supper and the way they waited on the children.

He also wants to thank the ladies of the First Church for their contribution of $10.00 to help the relief work of the Salvation Army.

DAIL EIREANN DELAY ACTION

First Two Days of Session To Be Devoted To Formalities.

FEELING OPTIMISTIC

London Expects Sinn Feiners To Order Plebicite On Issue—Speaker To Be Chosen.

Dublin, Aug. 16.—The pessimism over the Irish situation, which today in some quarters in Dublin reached almost the point of hopelessness, yielded tonight to reasoned optimism when the program for the meeting tomorrow of the Dail Eireann was made public.

Instead of immediately taking up the problem of peace or war, the Sinn Fein Parliament will spend at least two days in dealing with the formalities incident to the opening of the new legislative body, thus providing an opportunity for many things to happen behind the scenes.

All Ireland is eager for a decision by the Parliament on the British Government's terms, whether it be acceptance of them, the expression of a desire for further negotiations or rejection, in order to remove the tension which exists.

The belief prevails that rejection would mean a resumption on an intensified scale when the truce ends of the guerrilla warfare that for so long terrified the country.

Dublin Castle officials view the prolongation of the sessions of the Dail Eireann in various lights. One section of the British Government forces expresses the fear that delay in immediately acting on the troublesome questions at issue may provoke the military, which is declared to be not hopeful of a favorable settlement, into making preparations for eventualities.

The other section, however, advances the opinion that the longer the members of the Dail Eireann are in debate the greater will be the chance for acceptance of the Imperial Government's terms. These persons affect to see a bright spot in a prolonged session, arguing that one day would be sufficient to end the negotiations if the Republican Cabinet so desired.

From all parts of the country members of the Parliament gathered today to attend the session of the body upon the decision of which so much is at stake. Many of them had been released from prisons or internment by order of the Imperial Government that they might lend their voices to the deliberations; others had been actively engaged with the Irish Republican army until the truce ended the strife, when they returned to civil life.

Des Moines Mute Not Toronto Man.

Des Moines, Iowa, Aug. 16.—The mysterious cripple who two private detectives claimed was Ambrose Small, the missing Toronto millionaire theatrical magnate, was found tonight and identified as John Daugherty, an inmate of the county poor farm since January 11, 1919.

The detectives, former Chief of Detectives John J. Brophy and his aid, Frank Harty, both of whom were dismissed from the police force for alleged robbery, claimed they had found Small. They said they had him in hiding for the $50,000 reward.

They were ordered today to produce him in District Court. It was then discovered that the mysterious man was John Daugherty, who lost both leds in a railroad accident December 4, 1917. Small did not disappear from Toronto until December, 1919.

The case against the two detectives will probably be dropped.

STORE BURGLARIZED

Merchandise Valued at Several Hundred Dollars Stolen From Sands & Co.

The general supply store of Sands and Company, located at the southwest corner of Patrick and Wilkes streets, was burglarized early this morning and merchandise valued at several hundred dollars, stolen. The burglars carried off a large quantity of shoes, shirts, overalls, ladies' waists and hand bags, carrying their plunder in the hand bags. The robbery was discovered when the store was opened for business this morning, and a report of the affair was made to the police who are investigating.

Entrance to the store was effected by wrenching the iron bars in a window.

The regular meeting of Motor Co. No. 5, will be held tonight at 7:30 o'clock.

WASHINGTON DAY BY DAY

(From Our Special Correspondent.)

Washington, Aug. 16.—Another "Deserving Republican" has landed a fat job through the influence of the Harding administration. The lucky one this time is Elmer Dover, of Seattle, Wash., and close personal friend to the present occupant of the White House. Dover was spoken of as the successor to Postmaster General Hays as Chairman of the Republican National Committee but this place was given to John T. Adams, of Iowa.

Dover is to serve as a sort of special agent between the United States and the government of Mexico in an effort to bring about friendly relations between the two countries. This place was formerly held by George Creel, Democrat, whom President Wilson made head of the Bureau of Information during the World War. Dover, incidentally, got his training in the political game from the late Mark Hanna, of Ohio, with whom he was associated during the McKinley campaign.

Crowder to Remain in Cuba

The United States government has no intention of withdrawing Major General Enoch H. Crowder from Cuba despite the criticism from certain Cuban newspapers that the General's continued presence in the island is a political menace. Secretary of State Hughes has made it very plain that General Crowder, who is the President's personal representative in Cuba, will remain there so long as this government feels there is need of his services. This need is described as particularly urgent at this time.

It was stated at the Department today that General Crowder is in Cuba as the friend of the Cuban people; that he has not, by word or act, offended the sensibilities of the Cubans; that the necessity for his staying there is keen; that his counsel ought to be of great aid in restoring Cuban financial stability; and that it is wrong to view his presence there as other than that of a clear-headed, able adviser.

May Name Underwood.

President Harding is devoting a good deal of time to the make-up of the American delegation which will attend the conference on disarmament and Far Eastern questions. While the appointment of Secretary of State Hughes as Chairman of the delegation is the only one thus far announced, the Gazette correspondent is informed that Majority Leader Lodge of the Senate is almost certain to be a member of the conference. Other names spoken of in this connection are Senator Knox, of Pennsylvania, and former Senators Root, of New York and Sutherlan of Utah. It is a safe bet that Senator Oscar Underwood, of Alabama, will be the Democratic member on the conference, although the offer has not as yet been tendered to the Minority Leader of the Senate.

$500,000 For Conference

Congress will be called upon to provide at least $500,000 to defray the expenses of the forthcoming disarmament conference. While this government does not intend to pay the bills of the foreign delegates that will be in attendance at the gathering, there will be many incidental expenses which the Washington government will have to defray outside the personal outlays by the visiting delegates. Entertainments will have to be provided and there will be other courtesies which will have to be extended, all of which will cost money.

Will Encourage Travel

In the opinion of A. H. Smith, president of the New York Central Railroad, who was a White House visitor today the action of the Ways and Means Committee in cutting out all transportation taxes will encourage travel on the railroads.

"While I realize that people who must travel on the roads will use the carriers no matter what the cost may be.," he said to the Gazette correspondent, "still the railroads have felt the effects of this transportation tax. Large numbers of people who, heretofore, have travelled on the railroads purely for pleasure, have cut it out, owing to the increased fares made necessary by the tax imposed upon us. Naturally, therefore, with the elimination of such a tax passenger business of the carriers should pick up considerably."

In Accord For Economy

President Harding and the members of his Cabinet are in virtual agreement upon the details of the plan for the reorganization of the government departments for the sake of efficiency and economy. Final approval is being held up pending the return to Washington of Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and Secretary of the Interior Fall. The plan being worked out by Walter F. Brown the President's representative on the reorganization committee, calls for an estimated saving of at least half a billion dollars a year.

TODAY'S THOUGHT

There is a written and an unwritten law. The one by which we regulate our constitutions in our cities is the written law; that which arises from custom is the unwritten law.
Diogenes Laertius.

DOLLAR DAY

Tomorrow, Wednesday, seventeenth instant, is Dollar Day in Alexandria. This custom, inaugurated but a few years ago, has become a fixed institution, and each advent brings rejoicing among the people of this city and the countryside who make it their Mecca for shopping. The Day has achieved a success far beyond its original scope or intentions. It has stimulated the merchants to a most friendly and beneficial rivalry. Through the agencies of the Advertising Club and the Retail Merchants' Bureau there is a community of plan and co-operation of endeavor that not only advantages the thousands of consumers in and around Alexandria, but by the interchange of ideas, and the coordination of effort in offering genuine bargains in every class and species of merchandise, the merchants themselves are benefited to an almost inestimable degree.

Alexandria has good reason to be proud of its Dollar Day. The Gazette shares in this pride and takes occasion not only to call attention to its new dress and typographic appearance, but to the skilful and artistic setting of the advertisements, which are pronounced by experts to compare favorably with those of any city in the United States.

As to the merchandise offered and the prices published, we challenge comparison with those of our big neighbor to the north. It has passed into history that Alexandria merchants are as enterprising and up-to-date as those of the nation's capital, and that their offerings are fully as attractive to the public.

It should be an added satisfaction, however, to know that in buying at home the citizens are boosting their home town, adding to its wealth, and putting money into circulation where some of it is bound to find its way back to their own pockets. The best way to boost Alexandria is to buy in Alexandria. Buying in Alexandria is building up Alexandria, and to this end every man, woman, and child should be dedicated.

The Gazette extends a cordial welcome tomorrow to those in the outlying districts and territory that are tributary to this city, and promises them in behalf of its merchants, fair dealing and courteous treatment. The weather-man promises smiling skies to our guests, and the Gazette can assure them of their human counterpart in shop and street.

Harding Goes Shopping; Is Recognized By Few.

Washington, Aug. 16.—President Harding went shopping late yesterday afternoon, making his way practically unrecognized through the downtown streets at their busiest hour and taking home a tiny tissue-wrapped package purchased in a jewelry store.

Accompanied by Secretary Christian, the President set out on the expedition unannounced, going to within a half block of his destination by automobile and then directing the chauffeur to park the car and wait. A few recognized him, and as he and Mr. Christian leaned across the jewelry counter making a selection, a group of girls who were passing by halted for a moment to look on.

"Oh, it's the President," exclaimed one. "I'll just bet he's buying a wedding present for his father."

What the President bought was known only to himself, his secretary and the jewelry store proprietor and they would not tell.

Mennonites Frown On Use Of Tobacco In Any Form.

Scottdale, Pa., Aug. 16.—Men must not use tobacco, to be numbered among the devout membership of the Mennonite Church, and women dare not use it, if they wish to be held in esteem by the followers of that faith.

Such was the decision of the delegates at the close of the Southwestern conference of the church, who went on record as being opposed to the use of tobacco in any form. To make this decision of the church of greater import to the male species, every young woman was advised to shun all who were the slaves of nicotine.

Pure as Mother Made It

An American Doughboy in France

By ELLIOTT F. HOFFMAN

(Historian of Alexandria Post, No. 24, American Legion.)

(For the Alexandria Gazette.)

The Meuse-Argonne Offensive

The morning of October 12 found us quartered on a high hill near the Valley of the Eprimont, which had been captured by the Americans a few days before. A spell of gloom had been cast over the entire company by the horrible calamity of the night before, when we had lost so many of our comrades—some of them the most popular members of the company. The depression was not even lifted by what would otherwise have been a joyful event—the giving out of coupons to be sent to our homes for the Christmas package—but it did serve to change the thought somewhat. It is not possible to quite understand now the great importance that things like chocolates, cookies, chewing gum and cigarettes, assumed to the overseas soldier .In ordinary times the desires are diversified but with the doughboy all desire seemed to be concentrated on a few unattainable things such as these. Fate decreed that most of us were to be denied those hoped for Christmas boxes. Many were killed in battle the next two days; some were wounded and spent Christmas in hospitals in France; while some who were "bumped" by the flu on the hike to the Rhine, spent Christmas in American hospitals on German territory. The officers urged the men to enclose with the coupon a letter to the home people. Even the two boys of our company who could neither read nor write had someone else express for them in writing their love for the folks back home. These were the last letters for many of our boys.

After the giving out of Christmas coupons was over, the kitchen detail was ordered to prepare the best meal possible. This was served about three o'clock in the afternoon and well did we remember what it consisted of—beefsteak, mashed potatoes, peas and Coffee (with both sugar and milk) and jam. True the last-named article had evidently been dipped from the can with a thimble, for we only came upon it accidentally as it lay hidden behind the peas, but nevertheless it was a taste of jam.

Our rifles, gas masks and bayonets were inspected and 100 rounds of ammunition, one can of "Corn Willie" and four boxes of hard tack were issued to each man, and at 4 p. m. we bade farewell to the kitchen guard and set out for the point where we were to relieve the First Division. We were scheduled to reach there bofore daybreak.

Our course led us through the Valley of the Eprimont and we came upon sickening evidences of the battle which had occurred there the day before. German and American dead lay unburied, horses, mules and broken equipment were lying about on the ground, and long lines of American stretcher bearers could be seen bringing back to the first aid stations the wounded and dying doughboys of the First Division. Only the hardening effect that war has upon a soldier, made it possible to stand the terrible strain upon the nervous system of such uncanny conditions.

Shortly before daybreak we located the Company, we were to relieve. They were "dug in" on a hill, well pro tected b ya woods. As they filed out of their respective dug outs, we filed in—two men in each hole. Finding these places already prepared was a stroke of good luck, for we could imagine what it would have meant to dig holes in that hard clay for which France is noted. Only the American doughboy, many of whom believe that we dug up half of Europe while we were overseas, will ever know what a hard job that was, digging a hole to sleep in every time we moved.

We posted our gas guards at night fall—a necessary precaution. These guards were supposed to serve a period of only two hours each, and did—provided the guard had a voice loud enough to wake up his relief. Bellowing in stentorian tones was his only chance of reaching his relief, since all dugouts were alike and it was impossible to know in the darkness which was the particular "residence" of the "Goldbrick" who was to go on duty. Added to this difficulty was a little natural deafness on the part of the relief to answer this call of his comrade who was standing out there in the rain. Hence when a gas guard went on duty only a "Ouija" board could tell when he would be relieved.

Early in the afternoon of the 14th of October, we advanced about a quarter of a mile in the woods to the "hopping off" point not, however, without a message from the enemy. Their planes flew over our heads, giving signals to their attacking lines, and they began immediately to throw up a barrage, making it necessary for us to run the gauntlet in order to get under cover. As one of us reached cover another would make a dash across the road until all but seven (three of whom were killed and four wounded) reached a point of comparative safety.

We began at once to dig in for the night, there in a thicket, while the enemy planes flew not less than 100 feet above us—so close that the "squarehead" of the enemy aviator was plainly visible.

All night long the Germans threw over high explosives, but none hit their mark. Our only loss during the night was due to the accidental death of one of our men by his own hand.

At 5 p. m. we were to go over the top. None of us slept much that night and we were up long before daybreak. After a breakfast of cornbeef and hard tack, the command came to advance. And thus the Rainbow Division, with the aid of the artillery of the First Division, began its drive on the Kriemhilde Stelling.

NEWS FROM THE LAKES

August 14, 1813.

The two fleets are in sight of each other and an engagement is momentarily expected, indeed, it may be considered as inevitable. The forces are nearly equal, and our men are in high spirits and anxious to come in contact with the enemy. We have therefore every reason to expect a favorable result.

INDIAN AFFAIRS

(Despatches from Georgia)

The situation of our relations with the neighboring Indian excites considerable interest and alarm. The hostile attitude assumed by no inconsiderable number and the distressed condition of those who remain friendly to the Government, would seem to warrant the interference of the U. States ,at least for the protection of the latter. .... It is evident that those who are hostile have been instigated to such conduct by the enemy [the British] and will again break out as soon as a favorable opportunity offers. .. ..“One of the Prophets was with me yesterday and says that the Alabama Prophets had begun prematurely. They were to go on with their magic until TECUMSEH arrived [the celebrated Indian warrior on the Lakes and now a Brigadier-General in the British army] who was to put the plan in motion and he would come when his friends (the British) were ready for him.

The clouds of war thicken around us—a rupture with the Indians appears now to be inevitable. The signal for combat we trust will be the signal for their destruction.

The man who says styles are shocking is always willing to be a shock-absorber.—Chambersburg Public Opinion.

ANCIENT AND MODERN LIQUOR

(For the Gazette.)

Beer was a popular drink in ancient Rome and Greece.

Liquor can be solidified into tablet form by a method perfected by a French chemist.

Gin is derived from the juniper berry. The word “gin” is an abbreviation of Geneva.

Benedictine is one of the most ancient liquors. It was obtainable as far back as A. D. 665.

Juice of grapes is the most wholesome of all products obtained by the process of distillation.

Hungarian whisky is distilled variously from turnips, mixed meal and potatoes and molasses.

Vodka, the fiery drink of the Russians, exceeds in strength the alcoholic beverages of any other country.

“Whisky” was derived from the Celtic “usgebeatna” (water of fire) which was subsequently contracted to “usguebdugh” and still later to “whisky,”

Absinthe, the most harmful and even fatal intoxicant, is made from a blue-green oil obtained from artemesia absinthium a member of the worm wood family. It was first used by the French only as a flavor for other beverages.

LAUGHS!

“My room is burglar-proof.”

“How can you be positive of that?”

“It couldn't possibly accommodate a second person.”—Judge.

When prosperity does knock at some doors it can't be heard because of the knockers inside.—Charlotte Observer.

Little Tommie Brown was always interested in his new baby sister. One day he stood peering down upon it while nurse was singing it to sleep.

“Nurse,” he whispered at last, “She's nearly unconscious, isn't she?”

“Yes,” nodded the nurse, and continued singing the lullaby.

Tommie whispered in alarm: “Then don't sing any more or you'll kill her.” —Evening News (London).

GUESTS ASSEMBLED FOR WEDDING FIND PAIR MARRIED FOUR MONTHS

Peabody, Mass., Aug. 16.—Guests invited to the wedding Saturday night of Miss Shirley Ingraham, daughter of James F. Ingraham, of the Governor's Council, to John Chaplin, of Georgetown, were astonished to learn that the couple had been man and wife for four months.

The information was revealed by means of an envelope containing a certificate of marriage, left with Councillor Ingraham when the prospective bride and groom volunteered to search for a missing clergyman. Then it was that the elopement and secret marriage of Miss Ingraham and Chaplin, who is a World War veteran and Yale graduate, became known.

All the details of the marriage, which was to take place at Conomo Point, the Ingraham summer home in Essex, had been arranged, but the clergyman who was to perform the ceremony failed to appear as the wedding hour approached. In fact nobody had engaged him. When on clergyman appeared the bride groom's father in law suggested that his son in law go for the clergyman.

"All right, perhaps, I'd better." Chaplin is said to have replied. "Come along, Shirley; we'll find him."

As the couple left the Ingraham house Chaplin passed Ingraham an envelope. The couple were out of sight when Ingraham opened the envelope and found a marriage certificate, showing the couple had been married in Dover, N. H., last April

Half an hour later the telephone bell rang. Ingraham answered it and heard the voices of his daughter and son in law. The couple were invited to return home for a parental forgiveness. Following a reception at the home the couple left yesterday on a belated honeymoon, which they will spend in Maine.

HAYWOOD MAY BE HEIR TO FORTUNE

Chicago, Aug. 16.—A hidden romance in the life of W. D. ("Big Bill" Haywood, who fled to Russia several months ago to avoid serving a sentence of 20 years in Leavenworth prison, as a result of which the former leader of the Industrial Workers of the World may inherit a large fortune, was revealed today by Charles F. Clyne, district attorney.

Haywood, according to Mr. Clyne, married Jane Minor in California 30 years ago. ater, after two children were born, he was said to have deserted her. He never obtained a divorce and later became leader of the "Wobblies," which resulted in his arrest and conviction with other I. W. W. officials of conspiracy to obstruct the war efforts of the United States.

In the meantime Mr. Clyne said that he had been informed Haywood's wife's father amassed a fortune in Nevada and Arizona, which went to his daughter at his death. Recently, it was said, the daughter died in Nevada, leaving no will. one third of her estate would go to her husband.

Mr. Clyne said that he was investigating the case with the idea of collecting an unpaid $15,000 fine assessed against Haywood.

PENALTY WITH TEETH

Confiscation of property is the remedy for speed demons, Senator Ashurst, of Arizona, declared in the United States Senate recently. It cured cattle thieves in that Plains State and it cures bootlegging to whatever extent it is applied.

If a "car" runs down a pedestrian, it was pointed out that the policeman on the corner should take it away from the owner and after five days, allowed for disputation and the serving of notices, sell it at public auction, turning over the proceeds to the pedestrian. It is Senator Ashurst's belief that if this law were put into operation it would not be very long before automobiles would quit running down people. The owner does not want to lose his car. Under present conditions he is called upon to put up a deposit to insure his appearance in court. He seldom appears in court and when he does and is fined, his fine is very often remitted. The traffic laws are a farce in the National Capital, declared the Senator from Arizona, and his views were similar to those of other Senators. In every city of the United States traffic laws are such that the real offenders, often the pedestrian as well as the motorist, escape punishment through influences of friendship or leniency of the court. The toll of accidents is nowhere greater per capita than in Washington.

The Virginia Grays, A. C. last evening held a social and business meeting at the residence of Lawrence Roland, 505 South Lee street The officers for the coming year were chosen and are as follows: President, Lawrence Roland; secretary treasurer, L. Thompson; Capt. Manager base ball team, Carlin Mason, and Captain of foot ball team, Leo Lyons.

After all business was attended to, and matters settled, refreshments were served after which the meeting adjourned.

Yesterday the Grays lost a hard fought game on the Shipyard field, losing to the Falls Church A. C., by the score of 7 to 12.

The up-county boys gained an eight run lead in the first two innings and in spite of the hard playing of the local boys, were never headed. This makes the second defeat for the "Grays." This season out of eight which is not a bad record for any club. The Virginian's would like to play the winner of the Triangle-Tiger game for the championship of Alexandria.

Kennedy Suspects Allowed More Time.

Los Angeles, Calif., Aug. 16.—Extension of time until August 22 in which to plead was granted Arthur C. Burch and Mrs. Madalynne Obenchain, indicted for murder in connection with the shooting of J. B. Kennedy, today when they were arraigned in Superior Court.

Ralph Obenchain, who allowed Mrs. Obenchain to get a divorce so that she might marry Kennedy and who hurried to her side in response to a telegraphic appeal, was admitted to the bar in California today for this case only to aid in Mrs. Obenchain's defense. He had arrived here from Chicago yesterday in company with Rev. W. A. Burch, father of the other prisoner.

Attorneys for the defense, in urging the delay, declared that they wished more time in which to consult on possible motions to be made on technical points at the time of pleading.

While the indictment was being read Mrs. Obenchain stood beside her former husband.

Sucked Into Ocean Cave, Army Wife Is Drowned.

Honolulu, Aug. 16.—While bathing off a rock promontory at the northeastern point of Oahu Island, Mrs. Orville E. Webb, wife of an American army sergeant, was drowned yesterday when she was drawn into a submarine cave by powerful suction caused by waves and tide. The body has not yet been recovered. Mrs. Webb had stopped over while on the way to join her husband in the Philippines.

A grim clue to two fishermen who left the island of Maui two weeks ago in a small boat and who never returned was obtained when a monster shark, caught by some Japanese fishermen, was cut open and a human leg was found in the stomach. The missing men's empty boat was washed ashore several days ago.

Father and Babe Die In Desert With Water Near.

Kingman, Ariz., Aug. 16.—The bodies of August Kaufman, of Pasadena, Calif., and his 3-year-old daughter, both of whom died of thirst in the Mojave Desert, were brought here today.

Kaufman and his family were touring from Calfiornia to a ranch in Pinal County.

According to the story told by Mrs. Kaufman, who, with the two other children, also nearly died of thirst before they were found, Kaufman left the automobile on foot Wednesday night to look for water. For three days he wandered through the desert before he finally collapsed. His body was found near the Yuma County line. Meanwhile, his daughter, Lillian, died in the auto from thirst and exposure.

The rest of the family was rescued by Joseph Ruddy, a ranchman.

In his search, Kaufman had passed within fifty yards of an artificial reservoir for sheep and cattle, officers said, and he had stopped his automobile to start his foot journey within five minutes' ride of the Clarence Mann ranch.

DAIL EIREANN DELAYS ACTION

Earnestness was depicted on the faces of all the men as they gathered for an informal meeting of the members of the Parliament, which was held during the course of the day. Many of those who had been away from Dublin for a long time met in small groups and discussed the situation with members more intimate with its latest phases than they.

Today in Dublin, aside from the prevalent feeling of anxiety over the situation, was peaceful. In order that there might be no occasion for a clash between soldiers and Sinn Feiners all the troops were held in barracks. No soldiers were to be seen anywhere on the streets of the city.

Tomorrow's formal opening of the Dail Eireann in Mansion House will be a public function, although there will be little room inside the chamber for persons other than members. Eamonn de Valera, leader of the Republicans, is expected to deliver an address. Then the assembly will be whipped into shape for its important work.

After prayer the session will be declared open and a speaker and a deputy speaker will be elected. This is all the business provided for in Tuesday's agenda. The session will begin at 10:30 o'clock in the morning.

Until the members of the Parliament got together today it had been understood that after the election of a speaker Mr. de Valera would immediately read the correspondence which had passed between him and Premier Lloyd George and ask the Dail Eireann to act on it. According to the present program, however, the question of peace negotiations will not be reached until Wednesday at the earliest and possibly not until Thursday.

Look over The Classified Column every day

London, Aug. 16.—Optimism continues the prevailing note in London opinion on the Irish question. The general view is that Eamonn de Valera, leader of the Republicans in Ireland, having sought but failed to secure improved terms, is in a position no worse than he was several days ago.

Public opinion here considers that the letter of Jan C. Smuts, the South African Premier, to Mr. de Valera, urging acceptance of the Imperial Government's proposals, is likely to prove the central and deciding factor of the issue. The belief is expressed, however, that the Dail Eireann will decline to assume responsibility for a decision, but will refer the problem to a plebiscite of the Irish people.

HOPES FOR DISARMAMENT

Sometime before the announcement was made regarding President Harding's proposals for a conference on the limitation of armaments and problems of the Pacific, an editorial was published in the weekly edition of the London Times, which bears directly on the methods to be followed in bringing the conference to a successful issue. The fear is expressed that a world-wide disarmament conference at this time might be dangerous, but an Anglo-American-Japanese conference is held to be "practically desirable to secure the peace of the world." An open conference, however, is not favored. On this phase of the subject the Times says:

"The arguments advanced against an open conference of the Pacific powers, as proposed in the Borah amendment to the naval appropriation bill and unanimously adopted by the Senate, are obvious. Washington opinion sees nothing but disaster as the result of attempts to negotiate in public matters necessarily arousing deep feeling in the countries concerned. Compromise, it is pointed out, would be impossible, because the pressure of domestic opinion would make it impossible for any of the parties in such a negotiation to recede from any position they had once taken up. The failure of such a conference would be worse than a negative evil. A world conference might fail, and no great harm beyond the creation of a feeling of disappointment need follow. But if England, the United States, and Japan had to separate without an agreement on disarmament, their relations could hardly remain upon the same footing as when they met. So strongly is this danger realized in Washington that, according to our correspondent, the mere summoning or acceptance of a limited conference by the United States may be taken as a sure sign that a basis of agreement has already been reached. The resolve will not be deemed overcautious in the empire.

NEAR EAST RELIEF

Richmond, Aug. 16—Eighteen thousand Armenian orphans face the prospect of having to go barefooted the coming winter, it was announced today by Oliver J. Sands, prominent Richmond banker who is state chairman of the Near East Relief for Virginia.

As a matter of economy in line with the general policy of teaching the children of the Levant to care for themselves, the inmates of Near East Relief institutions in Transcaucasia, Syria, Cilicia, Mesopotamia and Anatolia, have been making their own clothes and shoes.

Due to Moslem invasion and the strife of the past year most of the cattle in the Caucasus region have been driven off and killed thus cutting off the source of leather supply.

Unless the American people come to the rescue with donations of money or old shoes these children are destined to terrible suffering this winter. Mr. Sands has been informed by national headquarters in New York.

MUSTACHE IS PLUCKED OUT

New York, Aug. 16.—The police of the Coney Island station are searching for three burglars who yesterday tortured Stephen Vassilopoulous, 45, who controls ten concessions of the boardwalk between the Parkway bath and Brighton Beach Hotel, and escaped with $1,700 in currency and $400 in liberty bonds. Vassilopoulous was bound hand and foot to his bed, and adhesive tape was plastered over his mouth and eyes.

Representative Moore Makes Able Speech On Tariff Revision

One of the notable speeches on Tariff Revision in the House recently, was made by Hon. R. Walton Moore, of the Eighth District. Mr. Moore said in part:

"Mr. Speaker, supplementing the statements which I made while the tariff bill, which passed the House on July 21, was under discussion. I wish to say something of the evolution of the bill, with a view to emphasizing the objections that have been urged to the processes employed in enacting legislation of this character. I do not intend to discuss conflicting tariff theories, or to follow others in pointing out how inexpedient and dangerous it is to supersede the existing law by a complete general revision at a time when all conditions on both sides of the ocean are chaotic and the export of our surplus products depends upon imports for which they must be exchanged, since payment for them in cash or credits can not be expected; or to attempt any close analysis of the provisions of the bill. Nor would it be worth while to place against the confident predictions of the advocates of the measure that it will relieve the serious depression that now prevails my own apprehension that it may serve to increase the difficulties from which the country is now suffering.

My main purpose is to refer to the facts connected with the preparation and adoption of the bill, as to which I ventured to say during the course of the debate that the statesmanship of the country—should try to get rid of the method that is pursued in revising the tariff and to find some better method; some method that will take it out of the sphere of party politics and put it into the sphere of business as far as possible; some method that will make the Ways and Means Committee less a battle ground of selfish and avaricious interests.

"Admittedly there are few subjects of more importance with which Congress deals. No wholesale revision can be made without affecting directly or indirectly the entire population of our country and every occupation in which they are engaged. All of their internal concerns are affected, and likewise all of their commercial relations with other countries. Ordinary common sense dictates that the subject should be dealt with cautiously on the basis of the most exact and reliable information that can be obtained and with inflexible resolve to resist the demands and invasions of special privilege. Plainly the effort should be to preserve, or rather to restore, the full limits of the field of equal opportunity. But in this instance there has been almost hysterical haste instead of deliberation, conjecture instead of facts, and an astonishing degree of deference to interests which seek to enrich themselves by even more governmental favor than they have heretofore enojved. There has been as it seems to me, a marked disregard of the interests of the great body of the people: "those," to use the language of Edmund Burke, "whom Providence has doomed to live on trust."

"The bill was introduced in the House by the chairman of the Ways and Means Committee on the 29th of June. It was formally reported to the House by that committee on the 6th of July. Its discussion began on the 8th of July, and it was passed on the 21st of July. It was, therefore, considered in the Committee of the Whole for only 12 days, and finally acted on by the House on the twelfth day. More will be said about the sort of consideration—the meager scrutiny and analysis—which was accorded it.

"The bill is more voluminous than any that has been before Congress for a long time, with the single exception of the bill codifying the Federal Statutes. It consists of 346 printed pages. It places import duties upon a vast number of articles described in 14 schedules and enumerated by groups or individually in 1,458 paragraps. That the free list contains only 188 paragraphs indicates how universally duties are imposed on foreign importations. Furthermore, the bill carries novel and extraordinary provisions relative to the manner in which imports shall be valued and for lowering and raising rates by bargaining with or retaliating on other countries. Furthermore, it embodies in 109 pages the amendment and codification of our customs laws, which are the growth of more than a century of legislation.

"Let us see what occurred while the bill was being framed before it was reported to the House. Of the 435 Members of the House, who are expected to have some more or less definite conception of the meaning and probable result of every important measure on which they vote, 25 members constitute the Ways and Means Committee, in which is vested jurisdiction of the tariff and related matters. Seventeen of the twenty-five belong to the majority party and eight to the minority party.

"The Ways and Means Committee began open hearings on the tariff on the 6th of January of the present year and concluded them on the 16th of February. In that brief time the committee received about 1,000 oral or written statements, which are printed in a record of over 4,000 pages. Witnesses could not be searchingly examined or cross-examined.

Able Speech Made By Representative Moore On Tariff Revision.

"Examination of the printed record shows that what has happened heretofore happened again; that the great preponderance of testimony submitted to the committee was furnished by corporations and individuals anxious to increase duties and clamoring for the very highest duties the the committee might be persuaded to report, and it is not at all doubtful that they were asking rates the effect of which in their opinion, would be to advance the prices of their own commodities. Alluding to the environment in which the committee worked while the hearings were in progress and the atmosphere created by the efforts of those who were naturally serving their own interests, Mr. Frear, of Wisconsin, one of the Republican members of the committee has this to say in the separate report which he made to the House:

"In all tariff hearings the producers are generally heard on different schedules and are often represented by experts, attorneys and witnesses all of whom urge on the committee high protective rates for their particular schedules. Rarely are the great army of consumers represented by witnesses. * * * .....

Mr. Frear's statement simply echoes the views of eminent members of both parties who have in times past deplored the evils which attach to our methods of tariff legislation, For example, Mr. Roosevelt, in a notable speech in 1912, said:

"The practice of undertaking a general revision of all the schedules at one time and of securing information as to conditions in the different industries and as to rates of duty desired, chiefly from those engaged in the industries, who themselves benefit directly from the rates they propose has been demonstrated to be not only iniquitous but futile. It has afforded the opportunity for practically all of the abuses which have crept into our tariff making and our tariff administration. The day of the logrolling tariff must end.

"And then he went on to tell of his faith in a well-constituted tariff commission endowed with ample authority. But the day of the logrolling tariff has not ended. It continues to our own time. There is thus far no very promising effort to usher in a better day.

The entire committee took part in the public hearings, and there were available for the use of the entire committee a large number of printed compilations furnished the committee, at its request, by the Tariff Commission. But what of the information that was supplied by the witnesses and the Commission? Was it indeed of dependable quality? Was it information that could be assumed as very helpful in guiding the committee and the House toward safe and just conclusions? The chairman of the committee in his address opening the debate and exxplaining the bill stressed the importance of a speedy revision, and justified the bill by urging that duties should be imposed so as to equalize the difference in the cost of production in this country and the cost of production abroad. This he announced as a fundamental theory. And yet anyone who consults the information contained in the record of the hearings and in the compilations of the Tariff Commission will find that in respect to the bulk of the commodities involved, the witnesses and the Commission agreed that if it is ever possible to ascertain with any sort of precision the difference in production cost, it is absolutely impossible to do so at this time when all of the factors that enter into the problem are so uncertain and so constantly shifting on both sides of the ocean. That being true, the committee and the House were placed in a field of infinite conjectpre. They were like a mariner on a turbulent sea without an approved chart or compass.

"* * * When at length the bill reached the House on the 21st of July from the Committee of the Whole, the only amendments that had been passed on were those relating to the five matters specified in the rule and a number of other amendments adopted at the suggestion of the Ways and Means Committee, which were mainly for the purpose of correcting formal errors and improving the phraseology of the bill. Had the right of amendment not been so sharply restricted, nothing can be more certain than that the bill would have been most materially altered before being brought to a final vote in the House, for it is full of rates and provisions that can not stand the test of criticism. For instance, it was claimed during the debate that the bill, should it become a law, would assist the agricultural interests. But what will farmers say about the duty on potash contained in the bill, which can not be enforced without greatly increasing the price of a fertilizer of which they make such extensive use? What will they say about the adjustment of duties on articles that enter into the construction and maintenance of highways, a matter in which they are immediately and vitally interested? When the duty on asphalt was under discussion in the Committee of the Whole I referred in the following language to the probable effect on highway work of certain of the contemplated duties:

As I understand it not only may the cost of road construction be materially increased by a duty on asphalt but increased by the duties on explosive provided by this bill, by the duty on cement which the bill provides, and by the duties specified in the bill on structual steel and reinforcing steel. The matter of highway construction and maintenance is one of prime importance. In that work explosives are necessary. The Geological Survey states that the amount of stone annually quarried and crushed for road-building purposes and concrete road structures totals between 25,000,000 and 30,000,000 tons, and that involves the use of explosives. It is estimated that approximately 20,000,000 barrels of cement are used in the construction of highways, including streets and bridges, every year. Steel, to the extent of a heavy annual tonnage, enters into the cost of all highway bridge structures. The facts as to the employment of asphalt in highway work have already been detailed.

What will the farmers and others, now paying transportation charges that are almost unbearable, think of the bill when they find that it increases the duties on a great number of articles that enter into the cost of maintaining and operating the transportation companies and lessens the prospect of freight rates being reduced? How will those who are concerned about the shortage of housing facilities, and who desire that the price of building material should be kept at a normal level, regards a bill that points to the imposition of a duty on lumber, in the event that Canada should think proper to maintain a duty on that article?

* * * I believe one step that

VIRGINIA CROP REPORT FOR AUGUST

Richmond, Aug. 12—The yield per acre of Virginia wheat is the smallest since 1903, according to the August report of the U. S. Bureau of Markets and Crop Estimates. The average yield per acre is 10 bushels, compared with 12.5 bushels last year, and 12.8 bushels the ten year average. In 1903 the yield was 84.bushels. Wheat came through the winter in excellent shape, the April 1st condition being 22 points above the ten year average, but from this time to harvest there was a rapid decline. The poor yield is attributed to the spring freezes, rust, Hessian fly, and unfavorable weather during May and just as the crop was ripening. The highest yields are reported from the northern part of the State, but all counties have a much smaller yield than usual. The quality of the wheat is 83 per cent of a high medium grade, while the ten year average is 90. The preliminary estimate of production is 8,750,000 bushels, compared with 11,425,000 bushels last year, and 14,584,000 bushels the average production 1915-19. The forecast for the United States has been reduced 52 million bushels from the July 1 estimate. The total crop of both winter and spring wheat is now estimated to be 757 million bushels, against 787 million bushels last year, and 831 million bushels the average production 1915-19.

The corn crop improved slightly during July. The condition is very good in the Southwest, good in the northern and western districts, and below the average in the Central, Eastern and southern districts. The crop is very irregular because the rains have been so local, and frequently in the same county conditions vary from excellent to very poor. Generally the crop has an excellent color, but it is now at the critical period in its growth when good rains are needed for the full development of the ear. The condition of 84 per cent indicates a production of 43,929,000 bushels, compared with 50,100,000 bushels last year, and 53,524,000 bushels the average production 1915-19. The total crop for the United States from the August condition of 84.3 per cent is estimated to be 3,032,000, bushels, compared 3,232,000,000 bushels last year, and 2,798,000,000 bushels the average production 1915-19.

The condition of tobacco is the same as last month; there has been some improvement in many sections that have had showers, while in others the crop has deteriorated. The best conditions are reported from the southeastern edge of the belt. The condition of 68 per cent indicates a yield of 578 lbs. per acre, and a total production of 95,468,000 lbs., or 47 per cent les sthan the record crop of 180 million lbs. last year. On account of the decrease in acreage and the poor condition of the crop the production this year will be less than the average for the past ten years. The forecast for the United States based upon the August 1 condition of 6616 per cent is 889 million pounds, compared with 1,508 million pounds last year, and 1,272 million pounds the average production 1915-19.

The condition of peanuts is 82 per cent compared with 87 last year, and 82 the ten year average. This condition indicates a yield of 35 bushels per acre and a production of 5,254,000 bushels, compared with 4,416,000 bushels last year, and 5,699,000 bushels in 1919.

Virginia cotton improved considerably during July as a result of more favorable weather. The condition on July 25 was 82 per cent, against 74 per cent last year, and 83 the ten year average.

Hay crops were injured by the drought in June, and the yield of clover and timothy was les sthan usual. Late hay crops such cowpeas, soybeans, and millet were increased in acreage and at present promise good yields. The condition of all hay crops 76 per cent, compared with 88 per cent last year, and 80 the ten year average. The production is estimated to be 1,021,000 tons, while last year it was 1,266,000 tons.

The condition of other crops on August 1, compared with the ten year average in parentesis is as follows: oats 80 (82); barley 82 (88); buckwheat 87 (89); white potatoes 75 (81); sweet potatoes 83 (86); apples 7 (61); alfalfa 77 (87); millet 82 (85); pasture 79 (85); field peas 84 (85); field beans 85 (84); tomatoes 72 (83); cabbage 78 (83); onions 89 (87); peaches 4 (54); grapes 54 (82); pears 6 (69); blackberries 53 (80); watermelons 74 (75); cantaloupes 75 (76); sordhum 82 (84).

Kidney and Bladder Troubles Conquered or Money Back

Beware of kidney disease—thousands die of it every year who ought to be enjoying the blessings of life and health. Watch the symptoms. If you have specks floating before the eyes, puffy eyes, clammy feet or moist palms, backache or sideache you ought to get a bottle of Dr. Carey's Marshroot right away.

It has wonderfully benefitted tens of thousands of cases of kidney and bladder troubles and is the medicine you can always depend upon. Results are guaranteed.

NOTE—Dr. Daniel G. Carey was a practicing physician for many years and his great Prescription, Marshroot aided thousands of sufferers from kidney and bladder troubles. Hereafter you can always get this effective Prescription at all reliable pharmacists the country over. Keep in mind the name, Dr. Carey's Marshroot prescription No. 777. No other medicine can take its place.

HOW THEY DID IT

Mr. A. B. Farquhar, in his reminiscences of sixty-four years of business life, says that A. T. Stewart, the department-store man ,once said:

"It is a great advantage for an employer to have men who have been in business for themselves and who have failed. The mere fact that they start in business shows that they have initiative and ambition, which are very valuable qualities. The fact that they fail on their own account shows them that they are not competent to manage their own affairs and demonstrates to them that their best interest lies in casting their lot with those who know more about business than they do and who have the advantage of both skill and capital. This insures loyalty."

James Gordon Bennett told Mr. Farquhar: "The really important thing for you to know as a young man is that you must bank up your health account. Look at me—I am never sick, I never take a vacation. I am here at the office in the morning and sometime late at night. But I always go to bed early enough to get a good night's sleep. If you get plenty of sleep, and are careful of your diet, you will never be sick."

One day Mr. Farquhar told Andrew Carnegie of his practice of reaching the office at 7 in the morning, and the steel man remarked laughingly: "You must be a lazy man if it takes you ten hours to do a day's work. What I do is to get good men and I never give them orders. My directions do not go beyond suggestions. Here in the morning I get reports from them. Within an hour I have disposed of everything, sent out all my suggestions, the day's wor kis done and I am ready to go out and enjoy myself."

Most men are individuals, says Mr. Farquhar. Mr. Carnegie was a manager.

How much Gasoline Do You Waste?

Continued use of a low grade of gasoline results in an average wastage of almost 90% in fuel energy!

Even the best engines unavoidably waste great quantities of potential power. But the principal source of unnecessary energy loss is in the use of poor gasoline.

Unless gasoline of a uniformly high quality is supplied, the motor functions unevenly, sometimes burning the fuel cleanly, but more often discharging a large proportion of it, unburnt or only partially burnt, into the muffler. This means loss of power and is the cause of crank-case dilution and other troubles.

Use motor fuel of definite quality, and unnecessary waste will be eliminated. The improved gasoline now available wherever you see the familiar "S.O." sign is the best that you can buy. "Standard" Motor Gasoline is clean-burning, quick-firing, and releases a maximum of steady, smooth power. It will be more than worth while for you to give it a careful trial. You might as well have the best, for it costs no more.

Able Speech Made By Representative Moore On Tariff Revision.

could be safely and wisely taken would be to extend the authority of the Tariff Commission. The commission is now directed to investigate and ascertain all conditions pertaining to the tariff and, at the request of the President or Congress, or the Ways and Means Committee of the House Senate, to furnish the facts ascertained; and that is practically the end of its authotity. No one can consult the compilations of the Commission already mentioned without recognizing how wide has been the scope of its inquiries. Everyone who kept up with the debate recalls that prominent members of Ways and Means Committee spoke of the great service rendered by the Commission in its cod ification of the customs laws and its assistance in phrasing the provisions of the bill. And nevertheless everyone will also recall that when it was asked whether the Commission had made recommendations as to rates and provisions proposed to be incorporated in the bill, the answer was in the negative. Thus an expert body that, day by day, is examining tariff questions, is powerless to offer its opinions as to what should or should not be done by Congress. All others, including Government departments and agencies and the most deeply interested corporations and individuals, are free to speak, but the Tariff Com mission must keep silent. Why, is difficult to understand. It is not easy to understand why, as it proceeds with its investigations, it should not give the country the definite benefit of what it finds, by submitting concrete recommendations. It is at least conceivable that a strong Tariff Com mission composed of men selected as carefully, with regard to ability, char acter, and zeal, as the members of the Supreme Court, and authorized and required to unreservedly express its opinions, would be of invaluable assistance to Congress, and of corresponding advantage to the country. The advocates of such a departure entertain a strong hope that it would result in fairer duties, by removing or diminishing the influence of selfish interests; that it would tend to obviate the demand or necessity for wholesale revisions; that consequently on careful and patient study, it would lead to the substitution in large measure of specific rates for ad valorem rates, and thus eliminate an element of uncertainty in conducting our foreign trade; and that gradually the entire tariff situation would be stabilized, whereas it is now subject to sudden and complete change following any presidential election.

Closing the debate, in suggesting the view which I now reiterate, I said:

A gentleman a moment ago indorsed the proposition that the entire matter of revising or modifying tariff schedules or individual rates ought to receive better consideration than is possible under present methods. There are those who antagonize that view. There is in existence a Tariff Commission charged with the duty of exploring constantly the whole tariff situation and yet there are influential gentlemen who for some reason are reluctant to allow that commission even to make a recommendation to Congress as to schedules os as to individual rates. Why should we not at some time—and there is no more favorable time than when we will be fresh from the unhappy experience of a general revision—so amend the statute as to unite the hands of the Tariff Commission and break its silence by authorizing the commission not only to ascertain facts by investigation but to make recommendations which conceivably might prove of great value or tend to make the tariff less a partisan question and have it dealt with more as an economic question a business question? [Applause.]

There are bills now pending which provide for the enlargement of the power of the Tariff Commission, and their importance entitles them to early consideration. Should its power not been enlarged, perhaps further ap propriations should be withheld and the commission abolished. If, however, its power should be enlarged, even only to the extent of allowing it to submit opinions and recommendations, the result might be so satisfactory as to warrant us in looking forward to the time when it should be entrusted with more important and comprehensive authority and enabled to render service of the very highest usefulness to the country."

SUFFERED SEVEN LONG YEARS

Finally Relieved by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Ravenswood, W. Va.—"For seven long years I suffered from a female trouble and inflammation so that I was not able to do my housework. I consulted several doctors but none seemed to give me relief. I read in a paper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound so I decided to try it, and before the first bottle was gone I found great relief so I continued using it until I had taken eight bottles. Now I am very well and can do my own housework. I can gladly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's medicine to suffering women."—Mrs. BERTHA LIERING, R. F. D., Ravenswood, W. Va.

The ordinary day of most housewives is a ceaseless treadmill of washing, cooking, cleaning, mending, sweeping, dusting and caring for little ones. How much harder the tasks when some derangement of the system causes headaches, backaches, bearing-down pains and nervousness. Every such woman should profit by Mrs. Liering's experience. Remember this, for over forty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been restoring health.

PRIMARY AFTERMATH.

By Morris A. Bealle.

Richmond, August 16.—Chalk up another win in the unbroken string of political victories resting to the credit of William W. Sale, former Adjutant General of Virginia and campaign manager for E. Lee Trinkle, the next Governor of the Old Dominion.

To General Sale, as much as any one man, goes the credit for Senator Trinkle's overwhelming victory at the polls. It is true that Senator Trinkle's personality, his unbounded energy, his record as a business man and his ability as an orator contributed a generous share to the splendid victory.

But to gather to the fold of one candidate enough votes to elect in such a vast territory as the commonwealth of Virginia requires organizing ability of the very highest type. And General Sale was the man who held the reins in the Richmond headquarters of the gubernatorial nominee.

Back in December of last year when Congressman Flood and State Senator Mapp set at rest rumors that they would run for Governor a comparatively unknown man from out of the great Southwest modestly announced himself as a candidate. "Who is Trinkle?" many people in Richmond asked themselves.

They didn't get much help from their local papers which had pledged their support to Tucker and ridiculed the announcement that their candidate would be opposed. Such opposition would be futile, they told their readers, and would only make Mr. Tucker spend more money in order to receive what was already cut and dried for him—the Democratic nomination.

Before making his announcement Senator Trinkle looked around and selected for his campaign manager a man who, as Adjutant General of Virginia in war time, had hadled the vast organizing proposition of the selective draft in such an efficient manner that Virginia won the national distinction of being the first state to complete its quota in America's great national army.

Many of General Sale's friends were dubious about the chances of winning. Tucker had been campaigning for two years, his forces were organized and he had gotten the lead on anyone else by soliciting pledges from many politicians at a time when many thought the Rockbridge county man would be the only candidate. A politician certainly likes to get on the band wagon.

This would be the end of the General's unbroken string of victories, his friends told him.

But he only shook his head smiled and resolved to work all the harder. Aided by W. D. Cardwell, former speaker of the House of Delegates, another of the "undefeated clan", a State Organizer, Sale organized the State from Norfolk to Bristol and From Alexandria to Danville. He then set the machinery in motio.

Along about February the Trinkle supporters woke up to the fact that most of the newspapers of the state were sewed up tighter than a drum against them. Trinkle could get absolutely nothing in the papers, except the few which were supporting him. With the Wytheville man so little known outside of the Ninth District, this appeared to be an insurmauntable handicap. It was also a source of gratification to the Tucker forces who had discovered by this time that the Trinkle candidacy was anything but a joke.

General Sale it was who solved the problem. He went out an hired a professional publicity man—a man who came from Maryland with a record for breaking through the "crust" o opposition newspapers. In two months Trinkle was on the map again. To show his candidate that his campaign was being conducted along the lines of a business administration General Sale tabulated newspaper clippings to show that publicity in four week would have cost over $2,000 as paid advertising—and was worth two times as much in the way it was run, as news items.

General Sales was born in Rockbridge county September 30, 1872. I attended a private school there an graduated from the law school a Washington and Lee in 1893. He went to Norfolk to practice law where he remained until he came to Richmond in 1910 as Adjutant General.

He served nearly three terms i the State Senate from Norfolk, resigning to become Adjutant General He has never lost a political fight. He represented the Second District at the Democratic national convention in 1900. He was a member of the state contral committee and chairman four terms from 1902 to 1918.

After making such a brilliant record as Adjutant General during the early part of the war, General Sale was removed from office by Westmoreland Davis for political reasons over a loud protest from the War Department. President Wilson appointed him a major in the regular army and commissioned him to continue the work in Virginia which he had started and so successfully continued, refusing to turn it over to an Adjutant General of Davis' appointment.

The General has built up a successful law practice in Richmond in the eleven years he has been here. He declares he has no axe to grind in handling the Trinkle campaign, is after no office, has worked voluntarily, and only wants the distinction of having helped to elect the highest officer of his state.

Next to General Sale the important factor in Trinkle's success was William D. (Billy) Cardwell, State organizer.

He was born in Richmond April 12, 1868 and was educated at McGpire's School there and Randolph-Macon College. He graduated from the University of Virginia Law School in 1889 and immediately started practice with his father, who was later elevated to the supreme bench.

He was elected to the House of delegates in 1899 and served four terms the last as Speaker.

Though 50 years old he had a brilliant war record. As a lieutenant senior grade, U. S. Naval Reserve Force ,he was in command of squadron 7, 5th Naval Reserve District, a flotilla of ten patrol boats which guarded the Virginia Capes during the war.

The Mystery of the Cook's Pet Parrot

A FUNNY paper recently.
SLIPPED ME a good laugh.
WITH A wheeze about.
A FAMOUS ventriloquist.
AND WHY he had quit.
THE VAUDEVILLE stage.
IT SAID he discovered.
HE COULD make more jack.
SELLING WOODEN parrots.
SO WHEN I got home.
I PASSED the joke.
TO OUR cook, who owns.
BOTH A speechless parrot.
AND A sense of humor.
BUT SHE muffed it.
BECAUSE SHE didn't know.
WHAT A ventriloquist was.
SO I had to explain it.
AND ON the way out.
I BLEW just a whiff.
OF CIGARETTE smoke.
AT HER amusing old.
FOOL OF a parrot.
WHICH NEVER talks.
AND I said, "Poll.
HOW D'YOU like it?"
AND TO this day.
IT'S GOT me guessing.
WHETHER IT was cook.
OR THE blamed bird.
WHICH SQUAWKED back.
"THEY SATISFY."

CHESTERFIELDS speak for themselves. They let you know you're smoking. They "satisfy" and yet, they're mild. An impossible combination, you say? Sure—everywhere but in Chesterfields. The blend does it and the blend can't be copied!
